How club merch gets ordered today

Every club does this. Nobody enjoys it.

What that actually costs you

20–30

hours of committee time per order cycle — collecting, chasing, reconciling, rechecking.

5–8%

of members

pay late, pay twice, or never pay at all
— and someone has to go find them.

Too late

every time

is when size and name errors surface
— after the print run is already done.

None of which is why you joined the club.

We replace the whole chain with one link

 yourclub.themerchhq.in

A real storefront, open only to your members. They browse, pick a size, and pay. We take it from there.

No form

No sheet

No chasing

Four steps, start to delivery

01

You approve the designs

We design them, or we produce yours. Digital mockups first, revisions until you are happy.

02

We build your store

Live in 72 hours on your own subdomain, with your club name, logo and products on it.

03

Members order and pay

Straight to us, within an ordering window you set. You watch the count go up in real time.

04

We produce and deliver

To campus, in one drop — or bagged and labelled by name, if you would rather not hand-sort.

What your members actually see

Your members see your club. Not a form, and not us.

TIMELINE

From first call to delivery

That is the standard cycle. Fest deadlines can be compressed — but tell us the date first, not last.

“Why not just use a form?”

A Google Form is free.

And it costs you the thirty hours on slide three. Free software, expensive committee.

The local vendor is cheaper per piece.

Sometimes. Then count the reprints, the sizes that came back wrong, and the deposit somebody fronted out of their own pocket.

A big merch platform has a bigger catalogue.

It does. It also has a 200-piece minimum your club is never going to hit.

We are built for a 40-person society, not a 4,000-person company.

To get started, we need four things

01 Your club logo, in vector
AI, SVG, EPS or PDF. A screenshot will not print.

02 A rough quantity and budget
Ballpark is fine. It decides fabric and print method.

03 The date you need it by
The real date. Not the comfortable one.

04 One person we can talk to
One. Decisions by group chat are how deadlines slip.

That is the whole onboarding. Your store is live 72 hours later.

Let's get your store live.
